A Special Doctor By: Parv Laddha During this period of the pandemic, there is one person who stands out. That is the famous Dr. Inderpal Randhaw, a Chief Medical Officer in immunology and allergy founded TPIRC Southern California Food Allergy Institute. 2005, Dr.

Randhawa has treated 3,600 patients with severe allergies such as dairy, nuts, eggs, wheat, soy, and many other foods with an unbeatable 99% of success.

According to Parag Rajesh Laddha, "This is an amazing doctor who can recover anybody's allergies without harming them."

As a very special person, this diligent doctor helps patients' overcome allergies, take precautions and explains what to do in case of an emergency.

However, what is most important in this time is that this doctor displays persistence. Most doctor's offices that do not treat COVID are closed and not letting anybody in fear that they will get COVID. However, Dr. Inderpal continues to see patients in this scary time. He believes that even though it is dangerous to continue and let people come in contact with him he can not stop his treatment or else patients allergy recovery estimated date can go forward about 6 months or a year, much too long too wait. Also, if he concludes the treatment in the middle he would be risking multiple kids' lives who will then have a higher chance of having allergic reactions.

demonstrates persistence as he

Dr. Randhaw, aware he is taking a dangerous chance has set up multiple precautions. For example, he is only allowing one patient in his room at a time. Patients arriving are told to wait in their car until called by phone. Before COVID-19, patients were told to go to one room to exercise, where it certainly wasn't surprising to meet a few other people there. Now, there is an exercise machine in your own room instead of a commonroom, so multiple people don't have to gather respecting social distancing laws. They also take precautions like escorting patients from the back doorway when the treatment is over instead of the front door.

For sure, Dr. Inderpal Randhaw is a one of a kind hero making a difference during this pandemic.
